

MEN WHO BY LUCK GOT OUT.RAILROAD WRECK IN CONNECTICUT.
Two Trains in Collision on the New York and New England Road.AN INDICTMENT OF THE LUNACY MANIA—One Escaped Prisoner Freezes Others—Maitland's Violent Mania the Last Stage on His Way to Sanity and Liberty—His Own Narrative.

The Grand Jury, which has just been discharged, spent several days inquiring into the management of Ward's Island Insane Asylum. This time among the witnesses examined were several of the recently freed prisoners, who, after various forms of imprisonment, managed to get letters surreptitiously conveyed to the outside world, and so got their day hearing and were denied same. Yesterday the Grand Jury, however, was unable to find any record that the alleged inmates, in all cases before commitment, shall be examined by three physicians, each acting separately without the presence of the other, and that the examination shall be had before a Judge, and that the physician who shall be selected by the physicians shall be selected by the Judge, in the same manner that jurors are drawn, from the names of persons who have been examined by the physicians in practice in the State, county, or city during a period of one year. The purpose of this is to prevent the concurrence of the Judge, shall be necessary to a conviction.

We find the sanitary arrangements very defective, especially in the use of the baths, where health and disease prevail. From the testimony before us we find that opportunities afforded to patients to communicate with the outside world are very limited, and we urgently recommend that such arrangements be made as will enable patients to confer with their friends and legal counsel.

Recorder Smith said that the presentment was commendable, because it threw light upon the condition of the asylum, and that it was of great value to the public.

In a recent interview with a Sun reporter Dr. A. E. Macdonald, Medical Superintendent of Ward's Island Asylum, said he had uniformed him that Thomas D. Maitland, who was recently discharged, was afforded opportunity to go to the outside world, and that Maitland would have been discharged without legal proceedings in his favor.

Mr. Maitland tells quite a different story. He said that Mr. Simonson had not been well for several days, and on Tuesday and Wednesday was confined to bed.

On Thursday dangerous symptoms were developed, and despite the best medical skill he could render, he died.

The body was sent to New Haven, Conn., where it was buried.

Is it true that you had an opportunity to communicate with your friends outside? He was asked.

Dr. Macdonald says he always sends out rational letters. Do you know about always?

Yours, during the year that I was confined to the asylum, he was employed in the printing office over there. When he was suddenly put into one of the rooms, he was unable to get out, and the body was discharged from the asylum.

Is this discharge not fortuitous? He was asked.

How do patients get out under this strict surveillance?

My own escape was assisted by a note sent first to Deputy Comptroller Moseley by a Russian refugee who had picked it up. In some cases they have been able to get out, and from some patients to sympathize with friends.

Occasionally an attendant will be kind enough to take a patient on a walk outside, but the letter and decides whether or not he should be sent. The violent lunatic has a much better chance to get his letter out than a sane man, and the sane man is less inclined to do it. Institution is regarded as evidence of insanity.

Do you know that my friend was refused?

Because I was suspected of writing letters to the newspaper, I was not allowed to read the papers, and editing the official reports, when I was suddenly thrust among the worst cases of the asylum, people who could not speak English, and who were unable to understand me.

That was as bad as it could be. But the doctor, who takes his letter to the office, and decides whether or not he should be sent. The violent lunatic has a much better chance to get his letter out than a sane man, and the sane man is less inclined to do it. Institution is regarded as evidence of insanity.
